SUPPORT LWCF AND FOREST LEGACY FUNDING FOR OPEN SPACE PRESERVATION AND PROTECTION OF CRITICAL NATURAL RESOURCES

Dear Colleague:

We invite you to join us in signing the attached bipartisan letter to the Interior and Environment Appropriations Subcommittee, urging support for the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF) and Forest Legacy programs with much-needed funding to protect our lands and working forests.

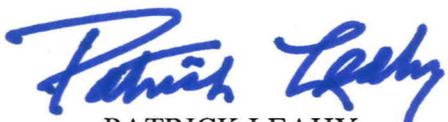

LWCF has helped to ensure the permanent protection and maintenance of critical lands in our national forests, recreation areas, parks, wildlife refuges, Civil War battlefields and historic sites. Equally important, this program has provided the matching funds to support countless state park and recreational projects in thousands of communities in every state across the nation. The Forest Legacy Program leverages state and private funds to assist states in conserving important working forestlands threatened by development and conversion to non-forest uses.

In every state, LWCF funds have ensured that all Americans can reap the benefits of access to outdoor recreation, America's unique historic and cultural sites, water quality and protected wildlife. Over the last 20 years, Forest Legacy has permanently protected over two million acres of private forestland in 46 states in cooperation with state and local partners.

In addition, our parks, forests, refuges and other open spaces support quality of life factors that help communities to attract businesses and a strong high quality workforce. LWCF funds park development activities through the Stateside program and increased public recreation through the Federal side as new lands are opened to public recreation.

This funding will help to ensure that critical park protection and recreation development opportunities throughout the nation continue. If you would like to join us in signing this letter or if you have any questions, please contact Adrienne Wojciechowski (Senator Leahy) at 4-2593, Robert Diznoff (Senator Shaheen) at 4-7092, Matthew Dockham (Senator Burr) at 4-3154 by Wednesday April 24.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Reed and Ranking Member Murkowski,

We are writing to express our strong support for the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF) and Forest Legacy Program, and urge you to support these valuable programs in the Fiscal Year (FY) 2014 Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies Appropriations bill.

The entire suite of LWCF programs protect natural resource lands, outdoor recreation opportunities and working forests at the local, state and federal levels, ensuring that critical wildlife habitat, hunting and fishing access, state and local parks, Civil War battlefields, productive forests and other important lands are protected for current and future generations. As you begin the process of drafting your FY 2014 bill, we respectfully request much needed funding for these critical programs. Recognizing these important and time-sensitive conservation and recreation opportunities, just last year the Senate voted by an overwhelming 76-22 margin to guarantee at least $700 million for LWCF for each of the next two fiscal years. We ask that you include a strong investment in LWCF and Forest Legacy that will support public land conservation and ensure access to the outdoors for all Americans.

Since 1977, LWCF receipts have been collected annually to fund federal land acquisition, conserve threatened and endangered species and provide grants to states. They are not revenues for general purposes – they are payments to the government specifically intended for conservation spending. However, more than $17.5 billion has been siphoned from the LWCF trust fund since the program's inception in 1965, diverted from their original conservation purpose. This chronic redirection of funding has created a large backlog of conservation needs, including already-negotiated land acquisitions from willing sellers. The resulting uncertainty has led states and federal land management agencies to postpone or cancel many important projects.

We firmly believe that LWCF and Forest Legacy are important programs to ensure continued access to public lands for hunting, fishing and other outdoor activities – an important and unique aspect of our American heritage. Continued investments in these programs help our nation's outdoor recreation, conservation and preservation economy, which supports millions of American jobs and contributes billions of dollars annually to the U.S. economy.

Despite a history of underfunding, LWCF remains the premier federal program to conserve our nation's land, water, historic and recreation heritage. LWCF and Forest Legacy provide a diverse array of conservation tools to address national, state, local and regionally driven priorities across the country. These include working lands easements that allow farmers and ranchers to continue acting as stewards of the landscape that sustains their livelihoods and working forest projects conserved through Forest Legacy keeping critical timberlands forested and accessible and providing jobs in rural communities.

LWCF is also a critical tool to acquire inholdings, expand public lands and protect national parks, national wildlife refuges, national forests, wild and scenic river corridors, national scenic and historic trails, Bureau of Land Management lands and other federal areas. The companion LWCF state grants program provides crucial support for state and local park acquisitions, recreational facilities, and trail corridors. The LWCF stateside program has funded over 41,000 projects including sports fields, outdoor recreation facilities and trails touching all fifty states. The LWCF state grant is the government's primary investment tool for ensuring that children and families have access to close-to-home recreation. Access to urban parks and community green spaces are vital for engaging youth and their families across the country with the outdoors.

These LWCF and Forest Legacy expenditures also create important savings for our federal agencies and the public in the long term because they secure land that provides valuable water resources, guard against incompatible development, support private working lands, and reduce fire risk. We hope you will remember that both LWCF and Forest leverage and complement state, local, and private conservation investments.

We look forward to working with the Subcommittee in the coming months to ensure that these vital programs are adequately funded in FY 2014 in support of our longstanding commitment to conservation. This funding will ensure that critical park protection and recreational development opportunities throughout the nation are not lost forever. As you begin drafting the FY 2014 Interior Appropriations bill, please include strong and consistent funding for LWCF and Forest Legacy.

Thank you in advance for your consideration of our request. We are grateful for your leadership in ensuring that funds necessary for our conservation and recreation needs will continue to be available.

Sincerely,
